Phi Delta Plans From Prom Play

"Peg o' My Heart" May Be Presented as Major Play; Laura Murray Reports on Dramatic Convention

The Phi Delta dramatic society held a meeting Wednesday evening, March 2nd, in Miss Peck's room, Agricultural Hall. The president, Laura Murray, gave a complete and enthusiastic report of the Intercollegiate Dramatic Convention at Yale, February 11th to 14th. She stressed the advantages of good lighting effects, and she suggested how we could adapt our stage by alterations, to better lighting effects and make plans for the construction of a stage in the new building.

Phi Delta has made arrangements for the presentation of a short, one-act play at assembly during the first week of April. Elizabeth Ramsbottom, who is coaching the play, has chosen the characters, and rehearsals have been held.

A committee, consisting of Miss Helen E. Peck, Alvin Anderson and Mildred Negus, reported on new initiation rules and ritual. The plans that were presented were unanimously accepted by the society.

As a result, it was voted that each member of Phi Delta at the June banquet would be given a Phi Delta pin.

Various plays were discussed in view of choosing one for the major production which is to be presented during Junior week. One play which especially appealed to the majority of those present was "Peg O' My Heart." Three productions of the play will be given; one in Kingston, one in Wakefield, and one in Newport. Tryouts for the major play of

TURLA—A HERO

Many in the crowd that witnessed the "Frosh" game last week noticed that "Broncho" Turla was rather shaky in his playing. There was a reason, however, for Frank had just returned from Nashua, N. H., where his father had died. Though playing under this strain, Turla put up a wonderful exhibition and when he was taken out for a few moments in the first half, he was accorded a cheer that few Rhode Island athletes have ever received!

Bears Fail to Show Any Offense, While Drab Pine-Tree Club Yields Without Over-Exertion of the Locals, Hurwitz's Long Shots Ruin the Nutmeg Cruisers in Uphill Fracas

"Venerunt, viderunt, victi sunt!"

That's the Caesarean expression that is heard about the campus. Three strong rivals of "Little Rhody" invaded Kingston last week, hopes high, records clean, and with promises of presenting action aplenty. But that didn't worry the locals. In fact, they taught their opponents some basketball tricks, and aye, a little saying, "they came, they saw, they were conquered!"

Brown University was the first of Rhode Island's guests, and also the first to receive a drubbing. The Providence invaders presented a scare for the early moments of the game, but soon class told and a 41-20 whipping was the best they could stand. The University of Maine greeted Coach Keaney's charges two days later. Their fate was the same, 29-20 was good enough for them! Last Saturday the great Connecticut team made gestures to break the winning streak of "Rhody." Fighting hard to recover a great lead lost in the early minutes, they failed, playing valiantly and losing gloriously, 37-33.

Brown Buried

Five tall warriors of "Tuss" McLaughry's great Brown team tried to stop the offensive machine of the Haire, Asher and Hurwitz attack. They played hard, but it made no difference. The locals played equally as well with results most gratifying.

"Stretch" Allison, lanky center of the visitors, proved a thorn in the side of the Kingston tribe. He was all over the floor, either breaking up the passes or shooting continuously to create some worry. But as the contest continued, the rain of baskets put Rhode Island far in the lead. Brown was in the rear, never to come forward.

The Keaney combination worked to perfection. Time and time again the local heroes worked the ball down the court to shoot from beneath the basket. Alec Hurwitz, star, guard, afforded the thrills of the evening with "DX" shooting. During the midst of the interesting proceedings, he thrice stepped up to the middle of the court to drop in his customary long shots that brought repeated cheers. Brown returned in the second session with a great determination to win. For a time they succeeded. But the late attack of Rhode Island brought a shower of baskets that ended in the worst trouncing that a Brown team has received in years.

The game was roughened up toward the end. Unable to stand up against the whirlwind attack of the White and Blue, they tried a little of their "Iron Men" teachings, but to no avail. "Firp" Asher had a most pleasant evening in showing a bag of tricks to the Brown team, motions and expressions they'll never see in many a moon. He toyed around to make Kingston feel that they were playing school boys!

Maine Loses, Too

The dribbling attack of Maine was a little too tough for Rhode Island to cope with. In a slow and uninteresting affair, the Pine Staters collegians held Kingston to a low score, losing 29-20. Once again the Keaneymen had their start slackened at the start through their erratic shooting. The invaders' guards, Hanscon and Durrell, fought hard and managed to trail Haire throughout the game. Meanwhile, they had succeeded in mounting up their end to come within striking chances of taking the upper hand.

Asher, veteran center, took the day's honors with his playing. When not in his mood to fool, "Firp" proved himself the most valuable man on the floor. His short shots proved the deciding factor of this close victory.

The Connecticut Game

In the third straight game that was witnessed by an over-flowing crowd, the basketweavers of Kingston engaged in a thrilling contest with their traditional rivals, Connecticut. When the heroes of both quintets had ended

George Davis Heads Freshman Class

Miss McAndrews Elected Asst. Treas.; Plans Started for "Frosh" Banquet

The Freshman class, on March 3, elected George Davis president. Miss Wood, vice president of the class, conducted the meeting until Mr. Davis was chosen.

Mr. Davis, after taking the chair, called upon Russell to state his ideas concerning the coming Freshman banquet. Mr. Russell, the class treasurer, said that it was customary for each Freshman class to give a banquet. This banquet requires a great deal of financial support, so a tax must be placed upon each Freshman. At his proposal of a tax there was some discussion over whether the assessment should be placed on the term bill or not. The class voted that the tax be placed on the term bill.

Mr. Russell, after settling one question, presented a new one, that of collecting dues from the co-eds. Collecting is a tough assignment anyway, but when that collecting must be done in Davis Hall, well—. At any rate, Russell asked that an assistant treasurer be elected. The class elected Miss Texas McAndrews to the office.

Mr. Davis gave the floor to a Grist representative who spoke about the Grist, its purpose, achievements, and success. Each class, he explained, has been accustomed to buy a full page complimentary "ad" from the year book. After the representative had finished, the class voted to buy the "ad."

When the Grist business had been concluded, some one suggested that the class choose a faculty adviser. The class decided to have the adviser picked by a committee

R. I. Players Honored

"Hank" Kobera, star captain and mainstay on the formidable Northeastern University basketball team, recently named an All-Opponent team. On this list was Captain "Red" Haire of Little Rhody's star quintet, who, in Kobera's estimation, has been one of the best he has seen. Sammy Epstein, mite Soph forward, received honorable mention. Eppy has two more seasons before him and no doubt he'll prove our leading scorer!

ON FINAL EXAMS

(By H. A. R.)

The Final is one of the oldest institutions in our American colleges. At the end of each semester these finals are given for the purpose of finding out just what each student knows, or doesn't know, about his semester's work. For the past few years there has been quite a little discussion about the usefulness of the final exam. Most students and some professors claim that the final does not accomplish that which it sets out to. On the other hand, there are many people who believe that the final exam gives conclusive proof of the student's knowledge and abilities. Being a student, I naturally take the student's viewpoint on this subject, but I think that those of my readers who have ever taken a final will agree with me in what I say.

The exam causes the students many hours of needless worry. No matter how good his marks may be he knows that a poor exam may prevent him from passing his course. I think that it is unfair to a student to flunk him if his daily work is good, merely because he flunks an exam which takes in more material than it is possible to remember. It is unfair to the teacher, too, for a number of flunkers in a class throw an unfavorable light on the teacher. It also costs suspicion on the ability of the teacher to teach.

A great many finals seem to be written with the idea that the student is taking only that one subject. If a student were taking only one subject we would expect him to know that subject most thoroughly, but when a student is taking five or six subjects, all of which are difficult, it is impossible for him to get more than a working knowledge of them.

Another evil caused by exams is "cramming." It is said that if a student studies faithfully throughout the year he need have no fear of a final 95.

This remark seems to me to be ill founded, for it is not possible to remember all the slight details of a subject. Hence, a few days before the time for the exam he commences to study. He spends hours poring over his books, learning new things and relearning many things which he has forgotten. As he continues he develops a fear of what is to come. This state of fear grows until it creates in the student's mind an inferior complex and a loss of self-confidence. All this seems to affect his mental well being and he goes into this exam with his mind in a turmoil.

I believe that there are many ways in which the evils of final exams can be abolished. I would first abolish the exams themselves. A much better way to test a student's ability is by a series of exams, let us say one every month, or a series of eight during the semester. The test would take in only the subject matter covered during that period. Any student of normal ability should be able to get a passing average on this series. Those whose average is slightly below passing could take a make-up exam. All others would not deserve to pass, for their failure of the series would show that they had not been working faithfully and therefore do not deserve to pass the course. In subjects which demand much reading this method would be most fair, for one cannot hope to remember every fact in a book of five or six hundred pages.

There is still another way in which we can substitute for the final. There is a certain set of standards used by which it is determined which students may be excused from the final, which are eligible to take it and which are not eligible to take it. These standards may be used in a different way. Those students who are passing the course could be given the mark they already have in daily work without the necessity of their taking the final. Flunkers who could pass the course if they passed an exam would be given an exam. Those whose work was too low to give them any chance would, of course, automatically flunk the course.

Most of our classes here are small and the professor can easily pick out those of his students who are conscientious about their work. There is great pleasure in studying, but the kind of studying one does in preparing for an exam is both displeasing and harmful. When final exams are abolished, studying will be made more beneficial and more pleasing.

The Beacon is in receipt of a letter signed by a "Rhode Island Student", who wants to know why the school paper has not printed a financial report of the Beacon for the last couple of years. The letter can not be printed because the writer is unknown, and like many others, has been thrown in the waste basket.

Many letters fail to reach print because they are signed anonymously. The authors of these letters can be withheld from print if they are so desired.

OUR VERSE NOOK

WHO WOULDN'T?

She was beautiful;
I felt dutiful;

Who wouldn't be "lovely"?

She was vivacious;
I was voracious;

Who wouldn't be anxious?

She was a coquette;
I liked her "cordelette";

Who wouldn't — brunette?

She was full of bliss;
I wanted a kiss;

Professor McCann

Professor McCann,
A real brilliant man,
One day had a nifty idea.
He went to his room,
And there in the gloom,
Mixed all sorts of chemicals queer.

He laughed to himself
As he took from the shelf
A bottle of beautiful red.
'Til make this rouge sweet
So 'twill be a treat
To all the young people," he said.

The sweet rouge was sold
In compacts of gold,
And orders piled up to the skies,
But the orders were downed
When everyone found
The darn stuff attracted the flies.

TO YOU

(From H. A. R.)

Sitting here
Next to you.
Brings back thoughts
Of days gone past;
Days of laughter,
Days of gladness,
Days when life
Was well worth living,
Full of romance
Love and levity.

Through it all
There came a cloud
That changed my laughter
Into tears;
That made me wish
I'd never known you,
That turned my love
To loathing.

But now again
A change has come,
Wherefor, I know not why.
But only I know
I'm happy now
Life seems a blissful thing
For I've you to love
And sit beside,
All thoughts of hate dispelled.

So may it be,
Forever anon;
Just you
And I Forever.

THE MARBLE SAINT

(G. H. A.)

You sit before me, cold and impassive,
A marble saint—and so you are to all.
And yet, you are a living, breathing being;
I see your bosom's gentle rise and fall.
You speak, and tones of mellow music
O'erflood me with a soothing ebb and flow,
Gushing from lips for which my whole heart hungers,
And which are colder far than driven snow.
Deep in your eyes there is an un-plumbed depth
Of ever-changing, scintillating light,
Devoid of all the warmth of burning sun by day;
Mocking the cold moon's rays by night.
God! that beneath the beauty of that faultless flesh
No warm blood beats through a pulsing vein!
God! that one so stirring love and all,
Must ever slay it with such chilling pain!

Miss Shaben, Traveling Demonstrator, Enjoys Stay Here

The Chi Omega's gave an informal party Thursday afternoon in the Chapter Rooms in honor of Miss Lillian Shaben, a Chi Omega from Iowa State College. Miss Shaben travels for the Russell, Miller Milling Company of Minneapolis and was spending three days at the college demonstrating and lecturing on modern cookery.

A cozy fire in the fireplace, the glow of it on the silver service, and the softened lights combined to make the Chapter Rooms attractive. Miss Shaben talked to the girls about the new chapter house at Iowa State College and the annual dance which the Chi Omegas give there.

Hot chocolate and wafers were served. Miss Evangeline Dimond poured, assisted by Helen Bowerman, Peg O'Connor, Betty Munster and Lois Wilcox.

After refreshments had been served the group gathered together and sang while Peg O'Connor played the piano. Thus the party was brought to a close.

Charles Easterbrooks Gives Interesting Discourse at E. E. Meeting

"Electrical Transmission of Pictures," a talk given by Student Charles Easterbrooks, was the feature of the meeting of the R. I. S. C. branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers on Wednesday, March 2.

The large number of "Frosh" and Sophs present was convincing proof of the advisability of holding the meeting at 3 o'clock, when all engineering students of all classes are free. Hereafter the meetings will be held at this time. All students interested are urged to attend.

Easterbrooks' talk was an abstract of articles appearing in recent magazines. He showed how a modulated wave was used to synchronize the motors used at each end of the circuit. Attention was paid to details of the light, sensitive electric cells used at both the transmitting and receiving circuits.

Narcotic Drugs Are Denounced by Assembly Speaker

Mrs. O'Neil Shows Evil Results from Drug-Forming Habits; Members of General Assembly Guests of College

After postponement of assembly on Feb. 28th the bell once more beckoned the students toward Lippitt Hall. Among the student body were thirty or more strange faces which excited the curiosity of the students. However, after a selection by our orchestra, in which George Davis rendered a trombone solo, accompanied by Nicholas Abbinanti, President Edwards brought the uneasiness of the students to a close by disclosing the identity of our distinguished guests, who were members of the General Assembly. With the student body recovering from the surprise and once more being at rest, President Edwards introduced Miss Helen Margaret O'Neil, the speaker for the afternoon.

The speaker addressed the students on the importance of forming good American citizens in our colleges. Miss O'Neil reminded the students that they must be prepared to hold up high the torch given to them by their forefathers. We must live up to the American ideals handed down to us. Education must remedy our ignorance and take its place. Miss O'Neil gave warning to the youths of America against the wide spreading monster of drug forming habits. They must refuse to take those white powders which torment people who are drug addicts for life. The speaker quoted statistics to emphasize this terrible destruction of human life in foreign countries, such as Persia, India and China, brought on by these drugs. We must have international regulations regarding the control of these drugs. The speaker again reminded the students that they must live up to the expectations of their forefathers to maintain the high ideals of true Americans.

Dr. Edwards expressed his appreciation and surprise at the unexpected visit of such distinguished guests. He reminded the students of four major events which marked a successful week for Rhode Island State College. First, was the success of our Military Ball. Next the compliments paid to our Glee Club, which, although not victorious in winning the cup in the intercollegiate contest held at Symphony Hall, Boston, has so far been having a number of successful concerts. Another event at Boston was the defeat of Northeastern University by Rhode Island State Basketball Quintet, Captain Haire scoring the foul which won the game, and finally, the fine victory of our debating team over Gettysburg College. With a selection by our orchestra the students marched from the hall, thus ending another successful assembly.

Economists Choose Conn to Office

Election of officers and discussion concerning the Economists' Ball were the main things brought out at the last Economists' meeting held on March 4 in the Chem Lecture Room. Mr. Donald Dennis, vice president of the organization, opened the meeting and proceeded immediately to carry on the election of officers for the coming year. Mr. Maurice H. Conn was elected president of the club and immediately took office. He then proceeded with the election of the other officers. Miss Margaret F. O'Conner was elected vice president, Miss Elizabeth Munster was elected secretary and Mr. Hugh D. Orr treasurer.

An interesting discussion then followed in regard to the ball. It was decided to make it a formal masquerade ball to be given on April

AND SO—WE SMILE

(G. H. A.)

Virtue is a frown, frozen upon cold, impassive features:—
Repellant, austere and stern.
It is cold light—the heatless glow of fire flies by night
That only seem to burn.
Wickedness is lilting laughter, lingering on warm lips
Which kindle all forbidden fires.
It is flame-flashes—dancing over the somber gray ashes
Of burned out, gratified desires.
Life, they say, is mingled sin and virtue—frown and smile.
Then you and I, girl,
Shall choose—to live life laughing all the while!
Let others frown the while we smile!

The Lamplighter

GOOD old Leerie, the lamplighter, worked cheerfully to make the streets bright. And the lamps sputtered a friendly glow into the darkness.

The citizens of the country have taken Leerie's job. They are the lamplighters of today, and they spend 3½ cents of each tax dollar that their streets may be bright.

Good street lighting means more flourishing business sections, safe traffic, convenience, and protection.

Leerie, the faithful, has gone—but streets still need lighting. And in whatever communities college men and women elect to live, they should take a lively interest in civic improvements—including street lighting.

FACULTY AND EAST HALL LEAD FRAT LEAGUE

VARSITY WINS THREE CONTESTS

their forty minutes of hard playing, Rhode Island held the upper edge, a victory sweeter than the 37-33 result could express. It was the sixth straight win of the season, and incidentally the twelfth of the season.

The Nutmeggers were possessed of a most wonderful scoring machine, headed by the versatile Williams, of football fame, and Eddy, another Storrs idol. Managing to acquire an early lead of 12-3, the Connecticut basketballers were headed for what many thought was a victory. Nevertheless, disheartening shots by Hurwitz, Haire and Epstein proved too much. The rivals were beaten. They could no longer cope with Captain Haire's team.

Starting fresh in the second session, they made a valiant attempt to forge ahead. Williams and Eddy headed this offense. Gloom was cast amongst Rhode Island Alumni and students. The neighbors had tied the issue, 27-27. Hurwitz, already the hero, stepped up to the center to sink another of his hair-raising shots. But back came Eddy with another of his short scores. Epstein dribbled the length of the court to cage a goal that made Rhode Islanders sit more easy. Then Williams sank a foul. Hurwitz again entered the limelight with another of his hawkers. Epstein added a foul and the game was saved up, a lead Connecticut was never to recover. The whistle soon blew, ending the issue with the locals at the commanding point, 37-33.

The Beacon presents to its readers a most vivid tabulation of the results of the recent victories. Not only has it the record of every shot and move, but also the score as it came in order.

Delta Sigma and Lambda Chi Defeated by Red Shirts, While Faculty Overcomes Rho Iota Kappa in Crucial Battles

When the smoke cleared away in the next to the last lap of the Frat League, the four-cornered tie had been broken. At present East Hall and Faculty hold top notch honors, Delta Sigma and Lambda Chi being the runners-up. Lambda Chi dropped a crucial match to East Hall by a score of 16-14 in an overtime game. Delta Sigma met its Waterloo at the hands of the Red Shirt squad. This gives these two teams a tie for third place.

Theta Chi and Campus Club continue the string of ties—both being even all at fifth place. P. I. K. is close on their heels, while the rest of the teams are slowly drifting towards infinity. Beta Nu Epsilon still maintains that a clean slate is better than one marred by wins and losses. However, the B. N. E. boys will give Beta Phi a chance to share the cellar with them next week.

The best match of the past week was the East Hall-Lambda Chi game. Both teams were fighting for championship honors and a merry tussle resulted. The East Hall bunch, composed of Perrotta, Hammill, Suita, Hindley and Sandore, gave the Lambda Chi crew, something to think about. In one of the best exhibitions of ball tossing this year, Lambda Chi tied East Hall 14-14 at the final whistle. This meant that an overtime period was played, and Perrotta, the Nurmi

We note with pleasure (knock on wood) that the college youth suicide mania has not as yet attained alarming proportions at Rhody. Evidently the "slough of despond" is empty.

Szulik, '29: I will bet anyone ten cents that I can cut above nine for ten consecutive times from this pinocle deck.

Capalbo, '30: "I take the bet."

R. I. "Frosh" Lose Tussle to Conn.

The Green of Rhode Island received its third straight close defeat last Saturday at the hands of the Yearlings of Connecticut. The game at first appearing to be an easy win for the visitors, proved one of the most exciting battles ever to be played at Lippitt Hall. The whistle was blown to save Connecticut from a possible defeat, giving her the verdict with little to spare, 31-29.

The Nutmeggers toyed around with the "Frosh" from the very start. The combination of Turla, Acroyd and Kearns could not solve the strong defense of the opponents. Trying as they did, they failed miserably. A lead of 25-10 was had near the close of the second half. But it was here that the cohorts of Coach Keaney flashed speed and action that earned them endless glory. They commenced an attack that swept the opponents off their feet.

The injection of Wigenhauser marked the tide. The rangy youth dropped in long shots that partly broke up the winner's defense. Three of these were sunk before the third quarter ended, making the issue read 25-16. The start of the final session was sounded with a basket by Ackroyd, closely followed with others from Wigenhauser and Kearns. The issue was now tied, 27-27. Connecticut forged ahead, but its lead was short lived. Again she scored and again the Green came back. A basket by Captain Ryan was sunk and the exciting affair then came to a close. Connecticut had saved itself from an impending defeat, 31-29.

Lamoreaux and Duffy carried the brunt of the scoring of the winners, each having a total of 11 points to his credit. Duffy, tall center, also did his part in the scoring department.

The heroes for Rhode Island were Wigenhauser and Ackroyd, their scoring coming at crucial points of the contest. Kearns and Turla failed to come up to their standard, but nevertheless their floor work stood up over the others. The two teams will meet again next Saturday at Storrs, a game that is certain to be complete with thrills.

Contributions for Gold Basketballs Coming Along Well

Ten Cent Admissions to Frat League Games Proves Easy Way of Raising the Money

In accordance with the decision of the Athletic Association to award a gold basketball to each member of the squad that scored a thrilling 29-26 victory over Yale early in the season a nominal admission of ten cents has been charged at all the Fraternity League basketball games to raise the necessary sum for the trophies.

The results so far have been very gratifying. Approximately $56 has been collected and without a doubt the total will be collected by the end of the frat league season. As it is planned now, the whole 15 members of the squad that made the Yale trip will receive the golden apples to remind them hereafter of a splendid victory of their college years.

Deses Merry at Annual Banquet

Martin Toastmaster at Delta Sigma Spread

The fourth annual banquet of the Delta Sigma Epsilon Fraternity of Rhode Island State College was held recently at their fraternity house. Mr. Eldorus Martin, toastmaster of the evening, introduced the following alumni and guests as speakers: Mr. John Droitcour, '27, Mr. E. J. Ernst, '24, Mr. M. C. Grossman, '25, Mr. R. Birkedale, '24, Mr. S. Mauser '24, Dr. Howard Edwards and Capt. Claude H. Hammond. Mr. John Droitcour welcomed the Freshmen and was answered by Howard Droitcour, '30. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Mr. Charles Wilcox (chairman), Mr. W. B. McKlein and Mr. A. F. Ernst.

Campus Club Holds Dance

The Rhode Island Campus Club held their first house dance of this year on March 5, 1927, at their fraternity house. The house was artistically decorated in black and orange streamers, the fraternity colors. The large fraternity pennant was hung across the main room and added considerably to the color effect. Vari-colored electric lights were used to light the house. "Shorty" Ray's orchestra furnished the music for the occasion which lasted from 8 to 11:30. Many alumni came back for their fraternity dance to help make the evening a successful one.

The chaperons of the dance were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Adams and Mr. and Mrs. A. Coggins. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Messrs. Murphy (chairman), Bloomer and Hammett.

The guests were the Misses Warde, E. Brown, Barker, Lewis, Cleland, Lee, Wilson, Johnson and McKee from Providence, the Misses Friedman, Barr and Suris from Pawtucket, the Misses Lindsey and Niebloom from Kingston, Miss Arnold from Woonsocket, Miss Polly Warde from Newport and Miss Wood from Peace Dale.

Many at Delta Alpha Banquet

The 18th annual Freshman banquet was held by the Delta Alpha Psi Fraternity of Rhode Island State College at their fraternity house on March 5, 1927. Many alumni came back to help make the evening a successful one. Mr. DeBucci as toastmaster introduced Mr. Arthur Meyer, '16, Mr. William Suno, '26, and Mr. Charles Pike, '24, as the speakers of the evening. The speakers gave the Freshmen a few pointers on both fraternity and college life. Mr. N. Russel, representing the Freshmen, gave a short history of the Freshmen to the alumni, after which Mr. Leonard Duckworth welcomed the Freshmen to the fraternity.

The committee in charge of the affair were the Messrs. Swanson, Scott and Ledward.

Glee Club to Sing At Warwick Friday

Chorus to Appear at the High School in Its Fifth Contest of the Year; Many Soloists Featured

The Glee Club will give its fifth concert of the year Friday night when it journeys to display its worth to an audience at the Warwick High School. Manager Holt plans to take about thirty men in the chorus besides the full complement of the Musical Clubs.

The club will sing some of the numbers which gave it a very high rating in the Inter-Collegiate Club contest at Boston last month, and should make a good impression on the sundry music critics who will be entertained in the high school auditorium.

The Musical Clubs will be represented by the "Hawaiians" and the "Novelty Melodians," two organizations which have gained much prestige this year in the musical world entertained by the Glee Club.

It is expected that the "campus caledonian," Jimmy Dow, will entertain as usual with his inimitable interpretation of Scotch songs. Savestano will give a demonstration of clog dancing and probably a buck and wing dance.

Vocal solos will be rendered by Leader Don Kinzie in the bass register, and Herbert Rosefield in the tenor. The bass solo will be "Down Trail of Dreams" and "Mother Machree." Rosefield will give some of the Indian Love Songs.

The personnel of the club remains unchanged with the exception of the new accompanist, George Hayden who appears with the club for the first time Friday night. A dance will follow the concert with the "Original Collegians" furnishing the music.

PHI DELTA PLANS

The year will be held within two weeks. Anyone who is interested should watch the Bulletin Board in Aggie Building for the notice of the place where the tryouts are to be held, and of the name of the book to be used.

Miss Peck then further discussed the Intercollegiate Convention, to which she was a delegate, stating that at Rhode Island State College, several of David Belasco's productions would be attempted if the necessary materials and conveniences were available. "Peg O' My Heart," although an old play, calls for much dramatic ability and it is sure to be a big attraction to every student on the campus.

Do not forget the tryouts! Many students who do not think that they have any ability along this line should come to the tryouts, for hidden talent may be discovered in this way.

Masonic Club Has Get-Together

The Masonic Club of the college held one of the most interesting meetings of the year Wednesday night in the old Campus Club room in Aggie Hall.

The meeting was opened by President Donald R. Kinzie promptly at 7:30. The principal business of the evening was the initiation of three new members: Mr. Green of the Experiment Station staff, Mr. Heath-erington of the faculty and Ian Walker of Providence.

Care of Child Problem for Y. W.

Organization Is Doing Some Constructive Social Work

The student body would perhaps be interested in hearing about the local philanthropy work which the Y. W. C. A. has been doing in the last month. Previously they have given baskets of food at Thanksgiving time, but this year they have also found a chance to do some very good work in connection with a poor and needy family not far outside of Kingston. There are two motherless children, a girl of seven and a boy of nine, whose father must work all day in order to give them the barest necessities. Consequently it is rather difficult for him to give them the proper care, although he is very anxious to do so. It was brought to the attention of the Y. W. C. A. by Dr. Beardslee, and they decided to see what could be done. Every Thursday evening, the regular Y. W. hour, has been given over to making clothes for these children. Other things have been provided, such as overshoes, thus making them as comfortable as possible during the winter. The Association has other plans for giving them further aid in the future.

Forum Discusses Rights of Student

Galen Kinney Opens Bi-Monthly Meeting in Agricultural Building

"Students' Rights" was the subject chosen for discussion at the Students' Forum held Wednesday, March 3, in the Board Room. Mr. Maurice H. Conn, Chairman of the Forum, introduced Mr. Galen Kinney, the speaker for the evening. It is the custom of the Forum to have a short talk by one of the members, who outlines the subject for the evening, followed by a discussion by the group present. Mr. Kinney's talk was mostly based on three main rights of students, namely, common rights, lawful rights, and inherent rights of the students. In the discussion that followed Mr. Kinney's speech, it was agreed upon by the body that a student should be allowed to take as many extra credits as he wishes to, providing that he is capable of carrying more than the average. Many questions were directed to Dr. Edwards, who was present, in regards to certain of the college rules. Mr. Henry Barney seemed to be especially interested as regards to the students' rights in a certain required course which necessitates the physical exertion.

Others who took part in the discussion were the Misses Margaret F. O'Connor, Elizabeth Munster, Frances Bene, Evelyn Grieves, Helen Bowerman, Grace Ebbott, Lucy Hanley, the Messrs. Daniel O'Connor, William Mokray, Lester Robinson, Lewis H. Miller, Lionel Warde, Abe H. Goldstein, Benjamin Fine, Thomas Wright, Howard Miller, and Jacob Skopp.

Mr. Conn announced that there will be another Forum in a short time and he hopes that even more of the college will participate in the discussions. If anyone has a subject that he desires to be discussed or any interesting subject that will benefit the students, please see Mr. Conn. as soon as possible.

Robert Blake Heads
Prom Committee

Class Elects Members to Arrange for Junior Prom

A meeting of the Junior Class was called to order last Friday by its president, Jerry Faunce. The meeting was called to elect the various committees to run the Junior Prom. A motion was made and carried that the class at large should elect the chairmen of the various committees. These chairmen are to appoint their own committees to work with them. The first man elected was Robert Blake, who was placed in charge of the Prom. Those elected as chairmen of the various committees were: Edward Intas, decoration committee; James Al- lenson, music committee; John Ten- nant, reception committee; George Anderson, floor committee; Leonard Dockworth, refreshment committee; Miss Virginia Brown, program com- mittee.

At the end of the meeting it was voted that the maximum admission fee should be five dollars.

It has been announced that there will be another meeting of the class soon to hear the reports of the out- standing committees.

Beta Nu Epsilon
Wins Second Debate

The Beta Nu Epsilon debating team defeated the Delta Sigma Epsilon at a debate held Monday, Feb. 28, 1927. The question, Resolved: That compul- sory military training should be abol- ished in our schools and colleges. B. N. E. had the affirmative side, the team being composed of Maurice Conn, David Fine, Howard Miller and Hy Hackman, alternate.

The D. S. E. team consisted of Richard Conklin, John Droitcour, John Orr, and Joe Clegg, alternate.

George Alexander, as chairman of the debate, introduced the speakers.

The judges, Prof. Jackson, Dean Barlow and Prof. Emery, gave a unanimous decision to the Beta Nu Epsilon men. The B. N. E. team was coached by Ben Fine. Joe Clegg was coach of the D. S. E. Timekeep- ers were Ben Fine and Ed Martin.

Beta Phi Holds
Banquet at Wakefield

Sigmund Fischer, Jr., Asst. Att.
Gen. of R. I., Was Speaker

Beta Phi Fraternity held their an- nual banquet Saturday, Feb. 26, at Masonic Hall, Wakefield. There were about seventy present to partake of the turkey dinner prepared by Mr. Butler of Providence.

After the tables had been cleared, Toastmaster Melvin Brightman intro- duced the new members to the alum- ni and then presented Mr. Henry Bar- ney. Mr. Barney gave a short speech welcoming the "old timers" back and told of the achievements of the fra- ternity during the past year.

The next speaker was Mr. E. C. Webster, the retiring president of the Beta Phi corporation who spoke on alumni support and the need of it at this college at the present time. Next Professor John Barlow spoke of his connections with Beta Phi since the organization of the fraternity.

In introducing the main speaker of the evening, the toastmaster explained that this year all precedents had been broken by having an outside speaker. He then introduced Mr. Sigmon W. Fischer, Jr., Assistant Attorney Gen- eral of Rhode Island, who spoke on "Crime in Rhode Island." He opened his speech with a short story which one of the boys reminded him of, thus getting his audience in a good mood and kept them that way by his fre- quent witticisms. During the course of his speech, he outlined a burglary case. He showed the difficulty the police encountered. This difficulty was minor in comparison with that en- countered by the state in prosecuting the criminal because he cannot be forced to go on the witness stand to testify. He recalled one instance where he had a case against a dan- gerous criminal and would have had no difficulty convicting him if he could have been made to go on the stand. Instead, the criminal sat there and grinned with the attitude "try to do it." He explained that the attitude of the law was that it is better to let nine guilty persons go free than to convict one honest man.

Huge Bonfire Marks
Victory Over Brown

Excited Students Make Merry

There is no longer spare wood in Kingston!

Following their glorious win over Brown University last Wednesday eve- ning the loyal students of Little Rhode built a huge wood pile in the center of the campus to celebrate. Ev- eryone from the humble Freshman to the mighty Senior searched all parts of Chickenville and Kingston for lumber.

The bonfire that followed drew a huge gathering of onlookers who en- joyed the many thrills that followed. There was a snake dance of wild cel- ebrators who tried to keep time to the merry clangor of the Davis Hall bell. Cheers and college yells then followed.

The heroes were forced to address the mob, but all efforts to try to get what each one said or intended to say proved futile. All spoke lacon- ically. Nevertheless, it is a known fact that Sammy Epstein failed to mention anything of his famous "Yale bowl" haircut.

When the pleas of those who wished school songs had been an- swered, there then developed a merry contest between the DeBucci and Gratton Factions to see who possessed the better Carusoes. It was difficult to judge by their selections, for "Side- walks of New York," "My Wild Irish Rose," and "O By Jingo" were no pieces to test talent with. College songs once again were sung and when the last notes of the "Alma Mater" had left the lips of the faithful stu- dents, all returned to their homes, contented to know that a grand bull session was in store for them.

Joie Reid, staunch rooter, an- nounces that another bon fire will be held this Saturday evening!

The campus was agog with an undercurrent of excitement! Co-eds clustered in small groups and dis- cussed the event in awed and sub- dued tones. The eds went from class to class with solemn tread and con- cerned faces. Sacred tradition had been violated by unholy sacrilege. One of the Profs had that very morning, in plain view of all, walked to class with his "Res- ervoir du lait."

IT'S A FACT,
AFTER ALL,
QUALITY
COUNTS!
